

Coin Appraisal Inquiry – Getting Started

You're interested in having your coin collection evaluated and possibly selling it. HCC is here to help you with those needs. We've been in business since 1991 and work with many community banks across the region to bring those services to you in person. With these changing times, it is proving to be more difficult to provide these services in person in a timely manner. With this initial coin appraisal inquiry form, it'll help us to know what your collection consists of, give you an approximate appraisal, and possibly set up a time to meet or use our mail in service.

We know not everyone is a coin collector or expert, you may have been handed down coins and you don't even know what they are. On the form you will see coins listed by type and their date range next to it. Please provide the date range of the coins you have. Example: You may have Indian Head Cents, those were minted from 1859 to 1909 but you may only have 1900-1905. That will help us determine if you may have something of more value than the common dates.

Below is an overview of coins many people have but just aren't collectable. They are modern common coins that people just don't like to spend and hold onto because they look neat, different, or are "older". These coins can be spent or cashed in at your bank.

- Jefferson Nickels 1946 and newer
- Bicentennial Washington Quarters Dated 1776-1976
- Statehood Quarters, Territorial Quarters, National Park Quarters (1999-current)

- Kennedy Half Dollars 1971 and newer – Bicentennial included 1776-1976
- Eisenhower Dollars (Most of these circulated coins are only worth their face value, they're a neat coin. We tell people to hand these out for tips or give them to your children when they lose a tooth.)
- Susan B. Anthony Dollars, Sacagawea Dollars, Presidential Dollars
